Cathwell Basics principles of cathodic

The impressed current cathodic protection (ICCP) system uses an external source of electrical power provided by a regulated dc power supply. The power supply provides the current necessary to polarise the hull. The protective current is distributed by specially designed inert anodes, generally a conductive material which is not consumed. A typical ICCP anode consists of titanium substrate coated with a noble metal or metal oxide catalyst.

Cathodic protection Wikipedia

Cathodic protection (CP) is a technique used to control the corrosion of a metal surface by making it the cathode of an electrochemical cell. A simple method of protection connects the metal to be protected to a more easily corroded "sacrificial metal" to act as the anode. The sacrificial metal then corrodes instead of the protected metal.
